

Lift Shop February Newsletter

Follow Us

Lift Shop has once again been involved with some remarkable projects, and we're very proud of the installations that have been completed... with many more still in progress.

Our lifts continue to be in high demand - for both their features and style. We increasingly find that the technology and safety features are a big draw card, but of course, customers also love the customisation possibilities, which are endless. Then there's the quality, which is unbeatable - there's just nothing else quite like it, so don't be fooled.

It continues to give us great pleasure to share some of our most recently celebrated projects with you and this month we feature:

Basic Black and White

In another stunning Pittwater setting, Lift Shop's ElfoLift has been dressed for success.

The initial welcoming impact - high gloss black steel doors with panoramic glass panels.

Inside the car - white timber panelling to match the walls of the home, profiles clad in white timber, white skinplate ceiling with LED downlights, brushed stainless steel horizontal car operating panel with oversized square buttons and contrasting black and white contemporary floor design - the classics just never fail.

To view the full article click here

Glass Act

Planning for this beachside home on the NSW Central Coast left no detail to chance, including a frameless glass lift shaft and car.

With an eye for detail and only wanting the very best, our traction drive Supermec was the perfect choice (the owner was so impressed he even bought another one for a development he was building at the same time).

Spanning four levels and providing through car access, the owner and builder worked closely with our sales and installations staff. They needed to make sure all issues were covered, right down to where the lift running gear and the door motors would need fixation to minimise the visual impact.

To view the full article click here

Glass Cabin - Masonry Shaft

As always at Lift Shop, we love working with clients to do something different. Normally, people think glass cabin means glass shaft - well, not always.

In this instance we provided our 320kg, two speed 0.25m/s FreedomLift with one mirror polished stainless steel cabin wall and the other two walls in full height glass panels. The inside walls of the masonry shaft were then clad in a 20mm thick stone to give an awesome cosmetic outlook, enhanced even more by the reflection effect from the mirror/polished stainless steel wall.

To view the full article click here

Balga Aquatic Centre

Working hard in the gym doesn't have to include being hard to get there - especially when Lift Shop's P2 platform lift is available to travel from the pool area down into the gym.

Also, visitors and management have commented on how well the simple clean lines of the P2 complement the decor of the centre, including even the exercise equipment.

To view the full article click here

Feedback

We love to hear what our customers think. If you have any feedback on any of the above stories, or would simply like to tell us about your Lift Shop lift experience or project, please contact us.